Flexible Programs

We welcome graduate students with diverse backgrounds. Our graduate student population includes everyone from those who recently completed undergraduate degrees to those who've been in the workforce for years or who have families and unique schedules. With a varied group of students, it is important that we provide options for study. Our programs are not only flexible in what and when you can study, but also where you can learn. We offer both full- and part-time programs. You can study with us in the heart of D.C. or in Virginia at either our Virginia Science and Technology Campus or one of our graduate education centers in Alexandria or Arlington. We also offer more than 100 online programs where you earn the same degree as students who study in the classroom.

The university has outstanding benefits for service members and the Military and Veterans Office provides excellent guidance on veteran-specific services. Some of my best experiences at GW were in the short-term study abroad programs I participated in. They exposed me to countries I would have never imagined I would work in and taught me how to operate on the international stage.”
