The George Washington University team works hard to make the GW experience a realistic option for every admitted student through admissions merit scholarships and generous need-based financial aid packages for those who qualify.

99% of applicants with need receive financial assistance.

We encourage you to use our Net Price Calculator to review your potential eligibility for financial aid and calculate your possible out-of-pocket expenses.

Merit-Based Scholarships

All first-year, transfer, and international applicants are automatically considered for most merit-based scholarships as part of the admissions process. Only a few special scholarships require an additional application.

Need-Based Aid

GW's Office of Student Financial Assistance administers need-based aid to undergraduate students. Need-based assistance is only available to eligible U.S. citizens and permanent residents. International students are not eligible for need-based assistance. Learn more about need-based aid at GW, including how and when to apply.
